CONTESTS FOR BUDDING FARMERS FEATURE OF FINE FAIR HELD AT CONSORT—CROWDS ATTEND

Live Stock Exhibits Demonstrated Satisfactory Development Of Mixed Farming—Excellent Display Of Dairy Products, Grains And Vegetables—Competition Keen In The Women's Department—Interesting School And Educational Exhibit.

One of the most practical features of the agricultural exhibits of the Consort fair was the special contest for boys under 16, who had the privilege of going into any field and selecting their bundles of hand-picked grain. The competition among the young farmers of the future was very keen and the quality of their selected sheaves was so excellent that it has been suggested that next year a third contest be arranged between the winners of the sheaf grain classes to see whether the boys or their dads are the best selectors of seed grain.

The livestock exhibits reflected a satisfactory development of mixed farming, and that the producers of beef, pork, mutton and farm power are working along sound lines. Competition was keen in the department of women's work, and the experts from the southern city who are touring the fair were delighted to see many cases by the local ladies, one of whom, Mrs. R. A. Sprung, won nearly thirty prizes and the prize for collection of farm work. A collection of curios was an interesting and unique feature. The dairy products the school exhibits and the educational exhibit of the Lacombe experimental farm were of special value.

Harvest Prospects Good
Judge A. G. Radie, who visited the surrounding country, reported no crop damage. The harvest is at hand, for much of the grain is about ready to cut, some binders being already busy, though the oats are shorter than usual, with the sheaves at the full showed straw a satisfactory length, with wheat three feet high and rye three feet two inches tall. The vegetables were well represented, as also the flowers.

C. A. Fawcett won first for wheat, oats and barley sheaves, and his boys won prizes in their classes of hand selected sheaves. For a special exhibit for the Edmonton Bulletin, Mr. Fawcett went into his own dripping field and selected a sample sheaf of wheat four and one-half feet tall, but unfortunately it was mixed with a load of hay and fed to the livestock at the fair. However, it is certain that Mr. Fawcett can secure a satisfactory growth of grain in the dry year.

In the livestock department judges Eadie and Campbell were well pleased with the samples shown. There was a good exhibit of general purpose and agricultural horses. The two good Percheron sires and the extra fine colts show a desire to develop their stock of sound lines.

Tricks of saddle horses by the children kept the judges busy selecting the winners. The cattle were good but lighter than usual.

By counting the thirty-five autos and sixty-five rigs and estimating the average load and the number who walked into the grounds it was considered that the fair had been open to twelve hundred people, who came to inspect the fine exhibits of agricultural products and enjoy the exceedingly interesting program of sports, while enjoying the social chat with friends and neighbors within a radius of forty miles.

For the success of the exhibition much credit is due to the enthusiastic members and the following energetic officials:

CASTOR AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY HOLDS SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITION; SPORTING EVENTS DRAW CROWD

Long List of Prize Winners With Exhibits in Live Stock Splendid Feature—Officials Given Praise for Success of the Enterprise.

(By Mail from Bulletin Staff Reporter.)
Castor, Aug. 19.—The success of the Castor District Agricultural Society was revived on Friday with renewed vigor by the largest crowd that had ever assembled on the fine grounds during the eight years of the Society's history. Within ten days the secretary-treasurer will mail the cheques to those who won prizes for their exhibits at the 1917 fall fair held on Thursday and Friday.

A. D. McCormack, one of the largest prize winners at the Castor fall fair, has donated to the Canadian Patriotic Fund, half his prize money won for live stock and horse races.

The live stock exhibits were strong in horses and cattle. The railway stockyards were conveniently used as corrals for the live stock exhibits. Another year's live stock parade will be a feature of the program. The domestic, dairy and garden exhibits were in the hall. The educational exhibit of the experimental farm was quite popular.

Grain Exhibit Satisfactory.
The alfalfa, clover, timothy, tall plump grain, corn, besides a splendid assortment of vegetables and both alfalfa and clover were very creditable. Through the rainfall this year here has been below the average the samples shown at the fair show a growth of grain, grass, roots and vegetables quite satisfactory.

Potatoes were of good quality and there were numerous entries though there would appear to be need for a campaign to secure a uniform type suited to the locality and the better to meet the demand of the export market.

Among the visitors to the fair was noted John Spady, now of Meadow View, near Castor, but formerly of Stony Plain, where as one of the committee he was instrumental in developing the uniformity of Stony Plain potatoes, so that they soon became famous and in demand, on the wider export markets of America.

Motor vehicles with passenger capacity all utilized were present with representative delegations from many surrounding towns on this and adjacent railway lines.

The Band Helped Out.
The Castor band enlivened the day with their musical selections. Under the leadership of this band has become quite popular not only at home but in many towns round about where this fall it has assisted at the fair.

President J. A. Jamieson, Secretary, Treasurer, J. H. Brown, and the staff of officers and directors all deserve credit for the success of the fair.

Some of the directors made considerable personal sacrifice in order that the fair should be a success. The large increase in gate receipts was very encouraging and an increase in membership was also noted.

The committee in charge were completely satisfied with the pleasing program of sports and horse races. The result of which follow:

ENDORSES PROPOSAL TO UTILIZE ROADBEDS OF THE RAILWAYS FOR HIGHWAY THROUGH MOUNTAINS

Executive Committee of Automobile Club Takes Action On Winnipeg To Coast Proposition—Also Decided To Proceed With Marking Of Leading Roads From Edmonton—City Council To Be Approached Re Road To Municipal Golf Links.

The executive committee of the Edmonton Automobile Club last night gave its emphatic endorsement of the proposal to utilize the roadbeds of the railways from which rails have been removed west of the city for a highway through the mountains and connecting with the Cariboo trail leading through Ashcroft and down the Fraser valley to the coast. The good roads committee was instructed to co-operate with committees which have already been appointed by the board of trade and the Rotary club to make representations to the Dominion and provincial governments with a view of carrying this project to a successful issue. The completion of such a highway would put the city of Edmonton on a direct road between Winnipeg and Vancouver, and the most feasible route would be followed. It was predicted by President Brookbank, who has just returned from an extensive motor trip through the States, that the completion of such a highway would be of untold value to this city, as it would attract many hundreds of visitors each year from the United States, as well as from the prairies east of Edmonton.

Marking Highways
It was also decided at once proceeded with the work of marking the leading roads from Edmonton, east, west, north and south. This work has been held up pending the formation of the Provincial Motor League in order

NEW METHOD TO SECURE COAL

Cardiff Collieries Bring Latest Drag-Line Machinery From Milwaukee.

Cardiff is soon to see something quite new in coal mining. The Cardiff Collieries have brought in a new outfit from Milwaukee, which is said to be the very latest thing in drag line machinery.

With this outfit the clay will be stripped from the top of the coal and the mining done from the surface. This will be a saving of a number of expensive items such as timbering, ventilation and to a great extent, haulage.

Under the present method of mining a large amount of coal has to be left to support the roof, but in working from the surface there will be no waste.

The coal in that locality varies from twenty to forty feet below the surface and the seam runs from nine to fourteen feet. This new machinery will strip four to five thousand cubic yards in ten hours so it is evident that an immense amount of coal will always be available.

Officials state that they will be ready to commence operations in about one month's time. In the meantime coal is being mined as usual.

CHAUFFEUR'S TRIAL TO BE NEXT OCTOBER

Maurice Kelly, taxi driver for the White Fleet Taxi Company, had his preliminary hearing in police court Monday morning on a charge of wilful misconduct from the fact that Kelly is alleged to be the chauffeur who ran down fourteen-year-old Archibald Thom, 11114 87th avenue, on the morning of August 10 as a result of which the lad was seriously injured. The boy was one of the principal witnesses called. He was swathed in bandages. He had been undergoing treatment at a local hospital for severe lacerations on the head and a badly injured eye.

Kelly was remanded for trial in October.

HOME BEAUTY PARLOR

BY MRS. MAE MARTIN

Sue L. I always recommend quinine to put vitality and luxuriance into one's hair. It will promptly remedy the dandruff and itching scalp; it costs little, and you can prepare it at home. From your drugist get one ounce quinine and one-half pint alcohol. Mix and add one-half pint cold water. This makes enough tonic to last a long time. Apply to your scalp twice a week. This is fine to prevent falling of the hair and premature loss of color.

Leonora: There is no virtue in an egg shampoo. The shiny animal matter clings to the strands and clogs the pores of the scalp. Try this simple shampoo:—Get some carbox from your drugist and dissolve a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. It leaves the scalp stimulated and cleans, and the hair beautifully soft and fluffy.

Polly: You do not need to send abroad for the new, perfect substitute for face powder. Make it yourself at home, by dissolving four ounces apricot in a half pint hot water. This is the simplest, purest lotion for making the skin soft and naturally fair. It stays on closely and gives a youthful freshness. When on

The Daily Poem

VACATION VAGARY.

Kathleen Mavourneen, the Grey Dawn is breaking.
But we'll let it break over mountain
There isn't a reason why I should be waking.
So let the dawn come; it shall not worry me.

Hark, hark, the lark at heaven's gate sings.
And Phobus' glins to rise;
But it takes more than all those things
To open my sleepy eyes.
For my vacation starts today.
And glad and gay I'll snore away.
And I will not arise.

At midnight in my guarded tent
I lay a-dreaming of the hour
When I should duck the next month's rent.
Nor fear the landlord's power.
In dreams through field and hill I went.

On mad vacation pleasure bent;
I heard the little birdies sing.
I sometimes shot them on the wing.
And when I awoke in the morning,
And found in morning spent.

The hours passed on and I awoke.
And I am not surprised a year,
To see those dreams of which I spoke
Will soon be realized.
Goodbye, false world, I'm on the run
To have my own vacation fun—
Soon as I get this column done.

"Sir," said the Courteous Office Boy,
And smiled beside my knee,
"Forget me if I do annoy,
But this I'd ask of thee—
Why will you spend your precious time

In carving out a measured rhyme,
When words and phrases neatly cast
In free verse fill up just as fast?"

I smiled upon the C. O. B.
And gave him this reply:
"I've got my deepest thanks to thee!
A clever boy you are!
Why should I hack out such a volume
Of rhyme to fill this lengthy column,
When words and phrases neatly cast
In free verse, fill it just as fast?"

We went and hired ourselves a band
And marched along the street
And played a brazen march and grand
And bade the bass drum beat.
"Hil-lee!" we sang, and "Ho!" we
Soon on vacation we shall go.
Soon as we fill this column long
With wild free verse instead of song!

I got myself a flowing beard
And on my chin I wore
Until my aspect stern appeared
Like the well-known Targore.

On made a million good
Of Pound or else C. E. S. Wood.
And then I ran to spur and scourge
The wild and sporting comic urge.
And thus I started on the run
To get this pecky column done.

Gull Lake is Popular
With Edmonton People
Week-end Dance Feature

Gull Lake has proved a very popular summer resort this year and the cottages and hotel have been taxed to their utmost since the season commenced. The days are hardly long enough to admit of the many pleasurable things to be done. Bathing and boating rank first. The beach is a long stretch of clean, white sand and the kiddies put in wonderful days with the spade and pail. Grown-ups, too, take endless enjoyment stretched at full length with rug and books in the soft warm sand. There are many beautiful spots which find favor in the eye of the aesthete with brush and pencil many profitable hours are spent. Perhaps one of the regular events of the week which is looked forward to by the campers and guests is the Saturday night dance. Last Saturday among the hundred and fifty who attended, the following were noticed from Edmonton: Mrs. Earl Hargreaves, Mrs. Irma Blackett and their guests, Miss Monteith (South Side), and Miss Wilda Blow, of Calgary, Miss Ethel Boyles, Dr. Price, Mr. and Mrs. Edward McIntyre, Mr. Roy Boyles, Mrs. Emby, Miss May McDonald, Miss Helen McLeod, Mr. Kerr, Mr. Heine Fisher, Mrs. Sugar, Mrs. and Miss Seymour.

From Morinville: Mr. and Mrs. McMillan, of the Royal Bank, and from Lacombe, Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Campbell.

HOME NURSING CLASS
Dr. Macleod's Home Nursing class will meet for the usual lecture Monday night at the Y.M.C.A. Clubrooms and again on Tuesday at the Royal Alexandra hospital.

Made 1,000 Articles For The Red Cross

Great credit is due to Mrs. Vint and her enthusiastic band of Red Cross workers for the noble work done by them during the drive held at the home of Mrs. Vint, 9425 101st avenue, during the week of August 6th-11th. One thousand articles were made, comprising pajamas, slips, towels, handkerchiefs, M. D. triangle and straight bandages and personal property for the drive. On Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock cream and cake were served for the purpose of raising sufficient funds to pay for the laundering of the articles made during the drive. The proceeds of this amounted to $11.05. After the expenses were paid the sum of $5.65 was handed in to the Red Cross to pay the laundry bills. The following ladies took an active part: Mesdames A. Roy, Houston, Walker, Keller, Hanson, Armstrong, Murray, Carson, Purcell, McDonald, Barrett, Hawkins, McCabe, Michener, Brunton, McPeak, Tehan, Coburn, Magee, McKechnie, McIntyre, Poyne, the Freebies of August 6th-11th: Armstrong, A. Abern, M. Walker, H. Nye.

It seems part of the skin and cannot be detected as can the old skin powder. Caroline: Yes, if the tissues of your face are inclined to sag, beware, or you will soon have wrinkles! Here is a good massage cream, which tones and braces the tissues with their beautiful complexion—Mix an ounce of almond oil (from your drugist) in one-half pint of cold water. Add a teaspoonful of glycerine. Apply freely. At the first application you will feel the skin contract and you will soon get back the firm contour and a velvety skin. For a good blood purifier, see answer to Maurice.

Maurice: The skin eruptions of which you speak are caused by impure blood, and you must eliminate the poisons from the system before you can hope to enjoy complete health. Into one-half pint of alcohol (whisky must not be used) pour one ounce karothen, then add one-half cupful sugar and hot water to make a full quart. Take one tablespoonful of this old-fashioned blood cleanser and tonic before each meal. This is splendid for that weak, worn feeling and restores the vital organs to healthy condition, and its timely use will prevent such serious sickness.

Fanchon: Certainly, eyes are harmed by belladonna, but this home-made tonic will clear and make them brilliant, while it is strengthening and resting. Anyone can prepare it by dissolving an ounce of carbox (obtainable at any drugist's) in one-half pint of clear water. Use a teaspoon or put a few drops in each eye at least once a day. Its brightening effect is immediate.

ATTRACTIVE ACTS ON PANTAGES BILL

This week's show is decidedly worth while. It is like getting married—everybody should experience it once and after trying it, many would be glad of a second or third repetition.

The number that lingers longest in mind is the combined musical and dancing act by Jessie and Dolly Miller. The older—but not old by any means, member of the team sang and played the cornet, while the audience grew more enthusiastic with each selection. The dancing of the younger girl was charming in its dainty grace. The Maori and Hawaiian dances were cleverly differentiated in steps and costumes.

As well done in its way was the short play given by Edna Earl Anderson and company. Miss Anderson is evidently experienced in the "legitimate" drama. She is blessed with a graceful and dignified personality and a voice so musical that listening is a pleasure. The secondary character, the "other woman," played by Gloria Mavallak, called for strong emotional acting and was adequately portrayed. The title "Hail and Shine" sufficiently indicates the theme of the play. It points out with great clearness that wives who are not "nails" to their husbands and also stenographers who are "sob sisters" to their employers with sympathetic ears for domestic troubles, are each likely to regret it. A corollary to the moral seemed to be that the combined husband and employee might well prefer an automobile accident to being present while the two ladies discussed matters.

A lovely on the tree was a juggling lady with a comic supporter, "The Cromwells," by name. If the ordinary housewife could but handle her tea things and mop and scrub pail as does this marvel, life would be one grand sweet song. And speaking of songs, Brady and Mahoney sang several, mostly about Woman, Lovely Woman. One singer was serious and sentimental, the other sang with a voice so musical that listening is a pleasure. The secondary character, the "other woman," played by Gloria Mavallak, called for strong emotional acting and was adequately portrayed. The title "Hail and Shine" sufficiently indicates the theme of the play. A corollary to the moral seemed to be that the combined husband and employee might well prefer an automobile accident to being present while the two ladies discussed matters.

When the world was younger there was a book and then a play called "Round the World in Eighty Days" which was thought the audience is so busy in considering the sorrows of Adam Nut, alias Jimmy Golden, that it never turns a hair.

Miss Gladys Davis, who pursues him and his valet, Howard Clinton, has every right to do so, and the only point the audience can't understand is why, after taking a look at her, he or any reasonable man should run away. Miss Davis was specially pretty in her last costume, a glittering iridescent blue. Her song "Egypt in Your Dreamy Eyes" was perhaps the favorite number but Mr. Golden as a valiant "for reader" had many admirers. The choral dancers were pretty and were picturesquely costumed. Their Spanish dance was very effective. The pajama dance in the aisle of a Pullman sleeper was novel and it is a really needy railway wishes to augment its passenger traffic. It might try engaging the company to give this dance at suitable intervals on transcontinental trains.

Canadian history of three years since seems to be repeated as we watch in the Universal Current Events film the eager preparations made by our big neighbor to take up the great war which lies before something of food conservation and the French war zone is also shown, and a sufficiently amusing comedy story.

PHOTOPLAYS

Publicity men tell of current attractions on the screen in local picture houses.

STIRRING DRAMA OF CITY LIFE AT MONARCH THEATRE

Out of the newspaper pages William N. Selig extracted accounts of sundry crimes foisted upon honest women of wealth by crafty gentry of illicit tendencies, and dramatised them for pictorial consumption that the public may have full cognizance of the methods pursued by these artful schemers to "trim" their victims. This instructive and edifying document came for Edmonton's perusal to the Monarch theatre under the captioning title, "Beware of Strangers."

Edmonton turned out in force to behold the cleverness of the clairvoyants and wire tappers. Besides the train theatre's attorney recently placed behind prison bars, and the blackmailer's syndicate which preyed upon susceptible females, the federal authorities broke it up. The vivid accounts of the glib activities of these polished criminals accentuated by the stirring announcements presenting the subject, served to stimulate the curiosity which nodoubt brought hundreds to the theatre on the opening day.

"Beware of Strangers" does exactly what the producer claims for it in the statements submitted in subtitled preceding the historical drama, and what the press agent modestly avers.

The individual characters are handled expertly by the players, though the construction of the play occasionally betrays certain awkwardness. The connection of the various forms of crime seems to have been accomplished with difficulty. The drama appears strained and strained in spots and reveals illogical developments to give it intensity. But it is startling and criminally true, every foot of it.

EMPRESS—Patrons to the Empress theatre yesterday were agreed that there have been few film features shown in Edmonton that appealed to such advantage as did "The Juggernaut," which remains the attraction today and Wednesday. Its whole story saves it from being placed in the melodrama class, and carries it to a successful success. The train wreck at the bridge where the timbers give way as engine and three passenger coaches come upon it at a high rate of speed, is one of the biggest thrills in the history of filmdom. The could be no faked accident, the crash of the train into the stream below, the whole thing being made at a cost that would include besides the train itself, damage to the bridge. It is an interesting side to the story to mention that the quality of this spectacle would be too great for the producing company to bear for one feature, and to get the full benefit of the disaster, twenty scenes were trained on the scene, recording the wreck from every possible angle. These various scenes have been included in other features and lesser features, but none so well as the one in "The Juggernaut" was the best of the whole lot, and astonished the trade critics when the picture showing of the film was made for their benefit, for review in the trade papers. All were agreed that it was the biggest thing in this line that has been done for the screen. Anita Stewart and Karl Williams, who are becoming as well known as like the Empress screen are the leading characters in "The Juggernaut," and their work is of the same high class as has been seen on past occasions. Edmontonians appreciate programs that are consistently good, and this is what the management is giving now, living up to the reputation of never having a disappointing feature or comedy.

It is still continuing from a severe attack of pneumonia. Frenau, who has arranged to meet Mrs. Royce at a former home of his, at the foot of the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument on Riverside Drive, the night and returns to his home to see Gloria, whom he is preparing to marry for her money. He gives her a message and tells her of being called out of the city on business intending to go away for one last fling with Mrs. Stanford. At midnight, Gloria, restless and unable to sleep, goes to her window overlooking Riverside Drive and gazes out of a pair of binoculars. She is amazed to behold a man she believes to be Frenau's lover, whom she thought she had seen at the monument, and then she beholds the murdered man. Was it really Frenau she saw? Was he murdered? And if so, by whom and why?

Famous Women

The Berkshire Lady's Romance.
William Kotich, a Berkshire gentleman, left his property, which was considerable, to an only daughter. This young lady had a mind of her own and, finding none of her authors to her liking, simply determined to wait until the right gentleman should come along. It so happened that one day she attended a wedding at Reading, where she met a young gentleman named Benjamin Child. He was a poor attorney. With this young man the young lady fell violently in love, but still she was cautious. She reasoned with herself for several days, trying to shew herself free of the sudden passion, but in vain. Then, feeling that something must be done, but unable from confusion of mind to devise a proper course, she took the extraordinary step of sending the young man a letter demanding that he should marry her. The latter appointed a time and place for the hostile meeting. Mr. Child was much surprised, and quite at a loss to conceive who the challenger could be. By the advice of a friend, he decided to go to the duelling place. Here he was met by the young woman, who, much to his surprise, told him he would have to fight her or marry her. He naturally chose the latter, and as the right to the fortune was his, he was afterward.

Cocoon Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulberry cocoon oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair. Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two tea-spoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rises out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage. You can get mulberry cocoon oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 21, 1917

Serve yourself by serving your country and humanity. Save food however possible.

The MacLeod-Tellier commission failed to convince Sir Robert Borden that it could convince the public that black was white.

B. C. fruit will have to rot under the trees for all most people can do to save it with fruit and sugar at present prices. Unless he can devise means of bringing prices down within the reach of people who are not plutocrats Mr. Hanna may as well save his wind as spend it urging Western people to preserve and can fruit.

Most Canadians are willing to save the kinds of food that are needed for shipment overseas. Still more of them are anxious to save money on the cost of feeding themselves. The success of the movement for voluntary conservation will depend largely on the extent to which the patriotic impulse to save food is hitched up with the personal desire to save money. To cheapen substitute foodstuffs is the way to enlist everybody in the volunteer army of savers of the sorts of food that are capable of being stored and shipped overseas.

If the spirit of voluntary service was alive in Canada today as it was two years ago the news of the furious fighting at Hill 70 would start a stampede for the recruiting offices, as the news of heavy fighting used to do at that time. True, men are not so plentiful as they were then—but the appeal for recruits is more compelling, and it would not fail of effect if the idea of enlisting had been encouraged and cultivated at it should have been. The dying-out of the spirit of enlistment has been due to a lack of inspirational leadership. If Sir Robert Borden could not give that leadership in the past he could not give it in the future. As a war leader he is impossible.

Hon. Robert Rogers invites the public to behold him withdrawing from the Government in disgust because conscription was not soon applied. To Mr. Rogers it may seem impressive to thus pose as a martyr to the supposed indifference of his colleagues and of Parliament toward the wining of the war. But if Mr. Rogers apprehends any prolonged period of lamentation on the part of the public over the loss they sustain in his removal from the Ministry, he may calm his fears. Any persons who take stock in his statement will be disposed to think the retirement of Mr. Rogers a compensating gain for anything the country may have lost through delay in the enforcement of conscription. And he need not delude himself that there are many who will give even this questionable amount of importance to his valedictory announcement. Most people understand quite well that Mr. Rogers is not withdrawing from the Government for the reason alleged or any other. He is being dropped; because Sir Robert Borden does not consider it politically expedient to try to carry him any longer. A man of Mr. Rogers' type is no longer a "push" in Canadian politics, but a weight. The public are "through" so far as that class of politicians is concerned, white-washing commissions to the contrary notwithstanding.

Nobody doubts Sir Robert Borden's sincere desire to help win the war. But he has tried to direct the country's war policy so as to make also for the political success of the Conservative-Nationalist alliance. And in the attempt to consolidate the alliance, to keep friends with its Big Business backers, and to accumulate political prestige for it, he has allowed the war policy to be curtailed, compromised and crippled, and the war chest and the public to be plundered by munitions Aliens and commercial profiteers. As the author and director of a dual purpose war policy he has failed. He should go, and the policy with him.

To a proposal that the Government might undertake to bring some of the idle land in Western Canada under cultivation and thus increase wheat production, Sir George Foster a few days ago in Parliament responded with fitting sarcasm, "We would have a fine time raising wheat." Considering the "time" the Government has had trying to carry on the more ordinary functions of a government, Sir George's observation is peculiarly appropriate. Whether any Government could carry out a large wheat producing enterprise successfully may be doubted. That the present Government could have done so neither Sir George nor anybody else imagines for a moment. Nevertheless, the land is lying here idle, and the world is short of bread. There must be some sort of Government policy conceivable that would get that land into use.

The appeal to tax-payers to pay their arrears cannot produce the maximum results, if it can produce any notable results at all, unless it is accompanied by a clear understanding that the man who makes no effort to respond to the appeal will be subject to legal procedure. The tax-payers of Edmonton have never been lacking in loyalty to the city, and they can be counted on to come to its rescue generally now if there is started a movement to clear up the back taxes and put the city on a safe footing. But unless such a policy is adopted, with assurance that it will be carried through, it is not reasonable in the nature of things to expect a large response to the appeal for voluntary payment. The situation is that a very substantial part of the arrears must be got in if we are to avoid disaster. That being so the disposition of the individual is naturally to wait and see what others are going. If they are doing nothing, and suffering nothing because they do nothing, the chances are that he will also do nothing. The idea exists, and must be reckoned with, that should the city default the man who has not paid his taxes will be in pocket, and that the man who has paid will be out. Right or wrong that idea has a restraining influence, and in face of it an appeal for voluntary payment lacks drawing power. To make the appeal successful that idea must be discredited, and the best way to discredit it is to launch a general campaign to get in the arrears—by voluntary payment where possible, and otherwise by legal process. If that is done the man who is willing to do his bit without compulsion will feel that he is protected, whereas now he has a suspicion—perhaps unfounded—that to pay is to take chances on losing what is paid and that to not pay is to secure a chance of saving the money. An assurance from the Government at this time that the moratorium act will be amended so as to protect the property only of soldiers on active service, accompanied by a definite declaration from the council that arrears against other property will be collected by legal procedure if not paid voluntarily, would give the appeal for voluntary payment a strength that it cannot otherwise possibly have.

Comradeship

Comrades, telling 'neath the sky,
Soldiers 'gainst a brutal foe,
Seeing splendid brothers die;
These the depth of friendship know.
We that live apart from strife,
Day by day in peaceful scenes,
Only think that in this life
We have learned what friendship means.

They that wear our uniform,
March to share a common fate,
Stand together through the storm,
Launched by cruel gun of hate,
Better know than you and I
Friendship's meaning to the end,
For they've seen their comrades die
Many times to save a friend.

To their lips the same canteen
Very often they have passed,
Well they know how much can mean
Help to one who's distressed,
Sharing what they have to eat,
Sharing what they have to spend,
Soldiers in the battle heat,
Know the value of a friend.

We may talk of friendship fine,
We may love the ones we own,
But a soldier's friendship is known,
He has shared a brother's bread,
Serving there a common plan
And has learned on field of red,
What a man will do for man.

ANSWERS

This department does not pretend to be infallible. It will endeavor, however, to answer questions sent it by readers of The Bulletin to the best of its ability, reserving the right to ignore all that are trifling or of concern only to the questioner. To receive attention, every inquiry must bear the name and address of the questioner. This information is not wanted for publication, but as an evidence of good faith.

Conscription Exemption.

To the Bulletin: Will you please tell me if firemen and police will be exempted if conscription comes into force?

A. H. J. City.

There is no provision for such exemption, but it is likely that such are essential in civil life would not be taken.

British Isles Population.

To the Bulletin: What is the population of the British Isles?

SUBSCRIBER.

The British Isles, including the United Kingdom of Great Britain (England, Scotland and Wales) and Ireland, the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands, had a total population in July, 1914, of 46,431,548.

Siphoning Water From Well.

To the Bulletin: Could you tell me through your paper a simple and inexpensive method of siphoning water from a well 24 ft. deep into barrels at side of well?

FARMER.

You cannot siphon water out of the well unless the barrels are at a lower level than the water in the well itself, and in any case water cannot be lifted by suction, at this altitude, more than 15 or 20 feet. You will have to get a pump.

Does Submarine Sink.

To the Bulletin: If the periscope of a submarine is shot away does the submarine sink?

W. J.

No, the loss of a submarine's periscope would not cause the vessel to sink. It would only have the effect of blinding it so as to make it necessary to come to the surface to get its bearings. The latest type of submarines have two periscopes.

With The Humorists

Making a Guess at It

Child—This heathens had a god for everything, didn't they?

The Mother—Yes, dear.

Child—Then who was the god that ruled over the kitchen?

The Mother—I don't remember precisely, but I think it was the great god Pan.

A Dismembering

"Willie, your master's report of your work is very bad. Do you know that when Woodrow Wilson was your age he was head of the school?"

"Yes, pa; and when he was your age he was President of the United States."

Cogent Evidence

There was a gathering of farmers in a little market town, when in stalked one in a state of high dudgeon. "What's the matter, John?" inquired one of the others.

"Why, the rate collector has just been to my house, and the fellow began to abuse me."

"What did you say?"

"Oh, I remonstrated with him."

"How did that affect him?"

"I don't know—but the poker was bent."

Mistook His Meaning

Country Lady—I've been expecting a packet of medicine by post for a week, and haven't received it yet.

Post Office Clerk—Yes, madam. Kindly fill in this form and state the nature of your complaint.

Lady—Well, if you must know, it's indigestion.

The Difference

Mother (to pummeling son)—Ivor, how often have I told you to stop before fighting and count up to a hundred?

Ivor—That's what I did, but Dave Jones' mother only told him to count ten.

Lighten the Day's

Work by eating food that does not use up all the vital powers in an effort to digest it.

Every particle of Shredded Wheat Biscuit is digested and converted into healthy tissue and caloric energy.

In the present food crisis every housekeeper and mother should demand bread that is 100 per cent. whole wheat.

Shredded Wheat Biscuit is made of the whole wheat grain prepared in a digestible form. Better than meat, or eggs, or potatoes, and costs much less. For breakfast or any meal with sliced bananas, berries or other fruit.

Made in Canada.

Current Comment

PERHAPS BOTH

From the Calgary Herald.

It is a question whether R. B. Bennett is disgusted with politics or politics disgusted with R. B. Bennett.

A TWO YEAR CHANGE

From the Regina Leader.

National government was mentioned two years ago, and the newspapers which opposed it most bitterly are the same who declare that to oppose it now is something in the nature of treason.

BOTH WAR VETERANS

From the Vancouver Sun.

The win-the-war resolution passed by Dr. Neely, who has returned from the front after nearly two years' active service, and seconded by Capt. Riley, a wounded veteran, and as courageous as any man who ever shouldered a rifle.

ENDORSEMENT OF LAURIER

From the Calgary News-Telegram.

The vote of confidence in the Right Honourable Sir Wilfrid Laurier, passed by the Liberal convention at Winnipeg was only to be expected, as he stands head and shoulders over any other Liberal in Canada. Had the government of the day taken the people into its confidence, it would have been at the present moment so much out of touch with public opinion as to be astonished at the results and verdicts of the Liberal convention at Winnipeg.

JUST ABOUT GIRLS

From the Chicago Tribune.

It is the open season for girls, and the shots fly thick and fast. One contributor would "put the girls back in their clothes." Another would "give the girls a good scrubbing, especially their cheeks, eyebrows, and lips." Next you know we shall be face to face with the fundamental question, which, of course, is: "Are girls any longer allowed?" For our own part, we incline toward a belief that they should. They are terrifying. Granted. Not long ago they put on false hair by the make-up, and a distinguished mathematician calculated that "Twenty girls make one mattress, twenty mattresses make one girl." They are perhaps as startling today. But we like them.

OUR OWN VICTORY

From the Vancouver Province.

If the Canadians keep on Lens will soon be a Canadian city. Our men have been in the front line there ever since the battle was begun, and under the new command of General Sir Arthur Currie they have done great work.

For a fortnight the Canadians have been closing in on Lens yard by yard. Their latest victorious assault will bring the fall of the city appreciably nearer.

The Canadians now control the dominating positions and with complete command by the British of the approaches on three sides, evacuation of the city may soon occur. Portions of Lens have already been burned by the Germans apparently in preparation for such a move.

A HINT TO HANNA

From Calgary News-Telegram.

J. H. Lamb states that he is not an executive factor in the food control administration and explains that his appointment is to the central advisory committee of Alberta, whose functions are to advise rather than to take concrete action. Hon. W. J. Hanna could do far worse than to make Mr. Lamb his executive factor in this province.

Mr. Lamb is eminently qualified to act as well as to advise in the food crisis that faces Canada. Perhaps it may be possible for Mr. Hanna to extend the authority of Mr. Lamb and his other Alberta advisers, and The News-Telegram ventures to suggest that this be done. With powers to act, the central advisory committee would be more active than it could possibly be as a purely advisory organization.

HAS STRONG POSITION

From Calgary News-Telegram.

In view of the fact that such slogans as "Win the War Under Laurier," "Laurier and a National Government," and "Laurier and Conscription," have been thrown into the "Peg" convention and taken up generally, it seems reasonable considering the Laurier position in Parliament, and "Laurier and Conscription" will mean a reference of the question to the electors of Canada, with the probability in the interval of a last final effort to raise the required number of men by voluntary enlistment. Coupled with "Laurier and a National Government," not only would the voluntary response be large, but that the war would accept compulsory service under Sir Wilfrid, if, indeed, the latter did not pledge himself, before election, that if returned to office he would undertake to see that his native province supplies its required quota for the ranks.

If any such assurance can be given to the convention, it seems safe to predict that Laurier will be almost unanimously endorsed by the convention, and, under the circumstances, it can be readily discerned how difficult it would be to defeat his party.

TO USE BRITISH RIFLE

From the Montreal Herald.

It is a matter of special interest to Canadians that the American expeditionary force is being equipped, like Canadians, with the British army rifle, the Enfield. This has been decided not only because the Enfield, Model 1914, is considered by experts to be superior to the Springfield, but because it is easier to obtain a large supply of the British rifle than the American—even in America. Three of the largest rifle factories in the United States have been making Enfields for the British government since the beginning of the war, and it would take them a year to set up the special tools, jigs and gauges necessary for making the Springfield. In fact, there is not a single private factory in the United States capable of turning out the Springfield rifle today, and the government supply and facilities for increasing the supply are small and inadequate in comparison with the facilities available for making Enfields. In just one respect will the American Enfield differ from the British rifle. It will be of .30 calibre instead of .303. It will be made to fit American ammunition.

Accounting For It

Levi Cohen was looking very dejected. That morning he left the house with five pounds in his pocket to try his luck at the races, but, alas, he had returned at nightfall footsore and weary, and nothing in his possession but a bad half-penny.

No wonder his better half was in a bad temper. "How is it," she snapped, "that you're so unlucky at the races, and yet you always win at cards?"

"Well, my dear," responded Levi, meekly, "you see it's this way: I don't shuffle the horses."

Mr. Boudreau's Challenge

Editor Bulletin:

Sir—The Journal having criticized the report of the Liberal convention by putting in doubt the sincerity of the delegates in giving the Hon. Frank Oliver the greatest reception he ever received in his whole political career, I wish to give the editor of the local Tory paper an opportunity of finding out how the sentiment of the farmer electors of this constituency stand with regard to the position taken by Mr. Oliver on the referendum question. I am therefore inviting the editor of the Journal to call a public meeting in any of the rural districts of Stony Plain, St. Albert or Athabasca. I will be glad to attend such a meeting and prove to the satisfaction of the said editor that the delegates to the Winnipeg convention represented truly the sentiment of the great majority of the people in endorsing Mr. Oliver's attitude. I wish to call your attention to the fact that our western Liberal governments have not long ago put on the statute books the direct legislation act, giving at the same time a referendum to their respective electors on questions of good deal less importance than the one before us today. Is it not striking that this very policy was endorsed in each of the legislative assemblies by the Liberal as well as the Tory members only a few months after a general election was held, and the Liberal administration returned to power by large majorities in each case. Is not evidence clear enough that the stand taken by Mr. Oliver was in accordance with the open wish of the western provinces.

The editor of the Journal may ask that a meeting of this kind be held in the city instead of the country, but there are several reasons why this meeting should be called in a rural district. First, because the big corporations, the money interests, which are to be found in the city look upon the Conservative party to take only their interest; so much so that Dr. Clark has decided not to run in the next election because he cannot endorse this very policy; second, the government machine would no doubt be set in motion in order to try and carry the meeting; third, the present conditions make it more important to consult about all the farmers, as we in the city are here today and may not be tomorrow, while the farmers are permanently located.

I wish the editor of the Journal would inform the public what he gets his instructions to follow his policy of raising the feeling of the English speaking provinces against Quebec. It is not in insulting any Canadian that this war will be won. I am under the impression that the object of this gentleman in so doing is to win the war. Well, sir, let me tell you that the people of the Province of Quebec are as eager as every other British province to have the final victory; they are strongly opposed to the small Nationalist party. However, they do not believe in winning the war by buying Ross rifles or thirteen-year-old horses and paying for hay never to be delivered. Thanking you for your valuable space, I am, Mr. Editor, yours truly, LUCIEN BOUDREAU.

In the King's Gardens.

From the London Daily News.

An officer friend of mine who has been on special duty in Norfolk tells me that he went over to Sandringham a few days ago, and was much interested in rambling round the gardens. Potatoes have ousted roses and countless other owners from pride of place, and beetroots, carrots, cabbages, and the like flourish where the gardeners of peace time designed wonderful schemes of "carpet bedding." A large number of oak trees are growing in the grounds from acorns gathered on the battlefield of Verdun. "Didn't the Kaiser plant an oak tree at Sandringham when he came here?" inquired my friend of one of the gardeners. "Yes, sir, he did," the man replied; "but it died soon after the war started."

MERCANTILE MARINE LOSSES IN MEN, 6,927

London, Aug. 20.—Since the outbreak of the war 6,927 officers and men of the British mercantile marine, exclusive of those in the pay of the admiralty, have lost their lives, according to a statement made in the House of Commons this afternoon by Sir Albert Stanley, president of the board of trade.

Adventures of Uncle Wiggily

By Howard R. Goss

Uncle Wiggily and Johnnie's Umbrella

Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Hello, Uncle Wiggily! Hello!" called a voice somewhere behind the old rabbit gentleman, who was out walking in the woods one day looking for an adventure.

"Hello yourself!" answered the bunny in his most jolly voice, at the same time twinkling his pink nose.

"Who are you?"

"I am Johnnie Bushytail, the squirrel boy," was the answer. "Wait a minute, if you please, I want to walk with you."

"Very good," said Mr. Longears. "If you come with me, Johnnie, perhaps we may both have an adventure, and that will be lots of fun."

So together the rabbit gentleman and the squirrel boy walked on through the woods looking for an adventure, and then, all of a sudden, it began to rain, and as neither Uncle Wiggily or Johnnie had an umbrella they were surely going to get wet.

"Run, Uncle Wiggily! Run!" cried Johnnie. "If you stay out in the rain your rheumatism will get worse."

"That's so," agreed Uncle Wiggily. "I haven't with me my red, white and blue check handkerchief, and Fuzzy Wuzzy gnawed for me out of a corn-stalk. But where shall we run, Johnnie?"

"There's a candy store under that big tree," said the squirrel boy. "Let's run there!"

So Uncle Wiggily, taking Johnnie's paw in his, hopped and ran into the candy store, where they were both soon safe from the rain.

Johnnie's tail got a little wet, for it was a large one, like a dusting brush, and dangled down behind him. Uncle Wiggily's tail, being very little, got only a few rain drops on it.

And then it rained and rained and rained, while the bunny rabbit and the squirrel boy in the candy store looked out at it.

"It doesn't seem as if it was ever going to stop," said Johnnie.

"And we haven't any umbrella," added Uncle Wiggily. "I wish we had one, Johnnie. But as it is, we'll have to stay here until the rain stops. By that time I may be late for supper in my hollow stump bungalow and Nurse Jane will not like it."

"That's too bad!" said Johnnie. Then he thought for a moment and went on: "If you had two pennies, Uncle Wiggily, I think I could get an umbrella for each of us."

"How?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "I don't see any umbrella stores here in the woods, Johnnie; and to go out hunting for one would mean that you would get soaking wet. I can't have that happen, even though I shall be glad to give you the pennies."

"I won't have to go out of this store to get us the umbrellas," said the squirrel.

"What nonsense!" laughed Uncle Wiggily, pinching his pink nose. "This is not an umbrella store!"

"Indeed it is not," said the monkey doodle gentleman who kept it. "And I am sorry I have no umbrellas to lend you."

"Give me two pennies, Uncle Wiggily," said Johnnie. "I'll get the umbrellas for us, right here in this store."

"I don't see how you can," spoke the rabbit gentleman, at the same time giving the squirrel boy the pennies.

"Now tell me what flavor of lollypop you like best," asked Johnnie, going over to the store counter, where the candies on a stick were all wrapped in wax paper.

"What flavor of lollypop I like?" cried Uncle Wiggily. "What has that to do with an umbrella?"

"I'll show you," said Johnnie with a laugh. "Tell me what flavor."

"Carrot," said Uncle Wiggily, hap-hazard like.

"I'll take hickory nut," spoke Johnnie, laying down the two pennies. The monkey doodle gentleman gave the squirrel boy the carrot and the nut-flavored lollypops, and while it was still raining hard Johnnie took the sticks from where they were stuck in the edges of the big, flat pieces of candy and fastened them in the center.

"There's your umbrella, Uncle Wiggily," said Johnnie, "and here's mine. Now just hold your lollypop umbrella over your head by the stick handle, and it will keep off the rain."

And so it did. The Changed lollypops were just like toadstools which all the animal folk use for umbrellas, and under the sheltering candies Uncle Wiggily and Johnnie could hop out of the store and home without getting wet.

"But I don't see what difference it made how the lollypops were flavored," said the bunny.

"It makes a lot," answered Johnnie. "Cause when the rain melts the candy, and the juice runs down the stick handle, it tastes good to sip it off with your tongue, and you might as well have the flavor you like."

"I never thought of that," laughed Uncle Wiggily, and then Johnnie slipped his lollypop juice and the bunny rabbit did the same.

Little Stories of Big Men

Frank a Munsie, Once an "Easy Mark"

Few American millionaires have had a harder climb to the heights of success than Andrew Munsie, owner of magazines and newspapers, who will today round out the 63rd year of his life. His path to wealth and fame is marked throughout the length of a road which he has traveled with his failures. In New York, Philadelphia and Boston he spent fortunes trying to put newspapers on their feet, and he failed at Baltimore and Washington, however, he succeeded brilliantly, and now he is again in the New York field with the New York Sun and Evening Sun. The Washington Times he sold a few weeks ago to Arthur Brisbane, the brilliant editor.

Mr. Munsie was born in Mercer, Me., Aug. 21, 1854, and was a century store clerk and telegraph operator in his youth. At 28 he took his courage in his hand and invaded the New York field and founded the juvenile weekly called the Golden Argosy. He had practically no capital and had to be editor, manager, contributor, advertiser and publisher. He lived on whole works, including office boy. He made a fortune from the Argosy but lost it and was plunged into debt. He then began to publish a paper of cheap magazines, and although many of them were failures, others made fortunes for him.

As a lad of 17, trying to make his way through business college, young Munsie worked in the summer as telegraph operator. It was at this period of his life that he became the victim of the "get-rich-quick" fever. Several years ago Mr. Munsie told of his experiences as a warning to other youths.

"A few cautious inquiries I learned that a hundred dollars might return a man a thousand dollars if invested in the right place at the right time. I had just a hundred dollars with which to return to school. One day a number of my distinguished patrons were lounging in the room, and I stepped back from my instrument and faced the group." Mr. Munsie then tells how he asked for "tips on the market" and received several. He selected the one which sounded best to him and invested those precious one hundred dollars.

"One day passed," he continued, "and then another. I watched the ticker with as much feverishness as the most confident gambler of the street." With every mention of the particular stock in which I had taken my plunge my hands and knees trembled—nerves, however, not apprehension. I had a sort of religious conviction that I simply couldn't lose. Before the week was ended my bubble broke. My stock tumbled one, two, three points, and before I could follow it further fall I knew that my hundred dollars had been wiped out. The "get-rich-quick" bug had been effectually eliminated from my system."

Sidelights on the War

The Return of the Milkmaid

The milk maid is famous in song and story. We have seen her—on the musical comedy stage or at the costume ball. But can anyone remember having seen a real milkmaid? The kind that our grandfathers talked about and chuckled under the chin, maybe? Well, anyway, we may all of us, that is, of course, "us" men, have a chance to do some chucking one of these days. In England they've already begun, especially in the smaller towns. At one time it was a common thing to see milk maids in London. Fleet street was their great gathering place, and they were mostly Irish or Welsh girls. The last surviving milkmaid in London was one who "practiced" in St. James Park, near Spring gardens. The cows were her never-ending reservoir, and a tumbler was with her 120 pounds of the best leaf for each. Oliver H. Perry, the hero of the battle of Lake Erie, was born on Aug. 21, 1755.

Today's Anniversaries

It was on Aug. 2, 1193, that Abdulmumen, ibn Ali, was elected Sultan of Eastern Africa by the following strategem: Having trained a parrot and a lion, he assembled the chiefs in his tent and urged upon them the naming of a ruler of their growing empire. The parrot perched himself upon one of the poles of the tent and pronounced distinctly: "Victory and power to the son of the Khadija, the son of the commander of the faithful." The lion then made his way through the terrified assembly, licked his hand and lay down at his feet. Deeply impressed with this wonder, and the manifest interference of heaven, the simple Almohades unanimously proclaimed him sultan. On Aug. 2, 1553, John Dudley, duke of Northumberland, was beheaded. He acquired almost unbounded authority after the death of Henry VIII, and by the abortive attempt to place Lady Jane Grey on the throne, lost his own life, and brought about the ruin of all concerned in the scheme. On the date of the year 1621, a cargo of marriageable ladies, consisting of one widow and eleven maids, were consigned at London to the colony in Virginia, to be sold for tobacco. The rate which they were supposed to bring was 120 pounds of the best leaf for each. Oliver H. Perry, the hero of the battle of Lake Erie, was born on Aug. 21, 1755.

COAL PRICE MULTIPLIED BY 3. St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 20.—Lump coal, which last October sold at the mines for 30 and 35 cents a ton, now is selling at the mines at $2.50 to $3 a ton, according to testimony today at the inquiry into the Missouri coal trade.

LITTLE BOY HAD DIARRHOEA

Only Blood Passed Bowels.

Diarrhoea, dysentery and summer complaints are responsible for many deaths, especially of children, during the summer months, than any other form of disease.

Diarrhoea does not need to persist for any length of time until the whole system is weakened, and other disease so quickly undermines the strength and brings about a condition of prostration and often collapse.

Mrs. E. Stoddard, Lower Clark's Harbor, N.S., writes: "When my little boy was a year and a half old he was taken awfully bad with diarrhoea. I had the doctor, but he got worse so that only blood passed his bowels. I tried everything, but he got no relief. One day while I was at work, I picked up a piece of paper, and on it was an advertisement for Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. After trying it a few days, the diarrhoea stopped, and the second one made a cure, would not be without it in the house for my little ones. I am proud to say 'Fowler's' saved my little boy's life."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for over 72 years, and there are many imitations of this wonderful bowel complaint remedy. See that you get the genuine when you ask for it. Price 35c.
